Indiana Humanities to Expand Novel Conversations Program

Indiana Humanities contributed to this article Novel Conversations

Novel Conversations, a free statewide lending library with more than 375 titles in its collection, recently received nearly $30,000 in grants to help increase Hoosiers' access to books. The program received a grant for $10,000 from The Glick Fund, a fund of the Central Indiana Community Foundation, as well as a $19,200 LSTA grant from the U.S. Institute of Museum and Library Services, as administered by the Indiana State Library. The grants will enable Indiana Humanities to reach readers in underserved areas of the state (including those without access to libraries), facilitate discussions with Hoosiers all across the state and fund events with Indiana authors.

Any Indiana resident with a book club and libraries all types can participate in Novel Conversations for free. Books are shipped via the Indiana State Library's INfo Express service to libraries around the state, or picked up and returned at Indiana Humanities' headquarters in Indianapolis. Residents of areas outside library districts may be eligible for free, direct shipping. Book sets need to be reserved in advance by calling 317.638.1500 or emailing Nancy Conner. IMLS Report Tracks Funding for State Library Agencies

The Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) recently released its report on the State Library Survey for fiscal year 2010. The data collected in this annual survey show that state library agencies' revenues fell by 24.1 percent in the previous decade and that reduction in staff has been one of the largest impacts of this shortfall. Yet, most agencies continue to provide essential services to libraries.

According to the report, state libraries are instrumental in helping local libraries meet growing public demand for content and services. They provide leadership by establishing statewide plans for library services, investing in technology and content that can be used by libraries statewide, and providing support for local programming.

Cuts to state library funding in Indiana has followed suit with national trends. However, despite a reduction of nearly $2 million in funding over the past five years, the Indiana State Library offers more statewide library services than ever before. The State Library found and continues to recognize significant efficiencies by directly administering and providing services like INSPIRE, INfo Express and professional development, among a long list of others.

This IMLS report marks the fifth release of library statistics data from IMLS. The data were collected through the State Library Agencies (StLA) Survey, the product of a cooperative effort between the Chief Officers of State Library Agencies (COSLA), IMLS, and the U.S. Census Bureau. The FY2010 survey is the 17th in the StLA series.
