

All,

I want to take a moment to acknowledge the challenges many public educators face today. Recently, some of our colleagues have unfortunately been the target of doxing, which is when personal information such as home/work addresses, phone numbers, or other private details are shared online without consent, often to intimidate or harass. We know this is upsetting, and I want to offer guidance to help protect your personal privacy and well-being.

While everyone has the right to share personal opinions on their own time, please remember that as educators and public figures, our words can sometimes attract more scrutiny than we intend. To reduce the risk of unwanted attention, consider these steps:

- Review privacy settings: Limit personal posts to "Friends Only" or a restricted audience when possible.
- Think before posting: Assume that anything shared online could become public, regardless of settings.
- Separate personal and professional identities: Use distinct accounts if you wish to engage in political or personal commentary.
- Avoid sharing sensitive personal information. Protect details like your home address, phone number, or family information.
- Report harassment: If you experience doxing or online threats, notify your supervisor and HR immediately so we can support you.

This is NOT a restriction on what you can say or do in your personal time. Rather, it is a reminder that public platforms can carry unintended risks, and I want to equip you with tools to protect yourself.

Most importantly, please know that if you face online harassment, you are not alone. The district will stand with you and offer assistance.

Thank you for all that you do for our students and community.

Charlie's death has ripped the mask off and exposed the hatred festering inside parts of Indiana's public school system. Why on earth are our schools filled with people who openly celebrate evil... like Joseph Cronk, the Superintendent of Anderson Community Schools??

When employees were caught cheering Charlie Kirk's murder, instead of condemning it, Cronk sent an email coaching staff on how to "protect themselves" on social media so they could post about Charlie without facing "scrutiny" or "unwanted attention." He even offered to help them if they were called out.

Think about that: rather than rebuking teachers for celebrating the death of a Christian leader, he gave them COVER.

This is beyond unacceptable. Anderson doesn't need "leadership" like this... it needs accountability. Anderson should FIRE this man immediately... and then we can see about DEPORTING HIM TO ILLINOIS WHERE HE BELONGS.
