Description: Kokiwanee protects an example of a high quality, biologically diverse landscape with old growth forests, natural springs, and waterfalls along with south-facing bluffs and cliffs on calcareous bedrock along the Salamonie River. This is a place of many species of trees; wildflowers, including snow trillium, and birds, from wood ducks on the river to great blue herons wading in the shallow water. For forty years Kokiwanee was operated as a Girl Scout Camp, introducing thousands of girls to an appreciation of nature. ACRES Land Trust worked to protect this large parcel of undeveloped land that is a refuge for plants and animals.
