General education teachers provide important input on a student's academic performance but are not central to the decision-making process. Building administrators oversee compliance and support the process but are not directly involved in eligibility determinations. Similarly, test coordinators handle logistical aspects of assessment administration, and school psychologists contribute critical data regarding a student's abilities but do not make final participation decisions. These stakeholders will instead be informed of the criteria to ensure they understand the process, can provide relevant support, and help ensure the implementation aligns with guidelines.	https://idoe.iatform.com/uploads/IDOE/W	imullskaggs@pilotindiana.org
