Course Description:

Ever wondered what it takes to be a police officer? This course introduces you to the essential skills and tools law enforcement officers (LEOs) use daily to keep communities safe. You'll learn about safety protocols, how officers protect themselves from harmful substances, and the equipment they rely on, like patrol cars, fingerprint kits, and self-defense tools. In addition, you'll explore how officers communicate effectively with dispatch, give verbal commands, and make decisions about using force while gaining insights into conducting traffic stops, writing accurate citations, and investigating accidents while ensuring safety. Beyond equipment and procedures, this course highlights the importance of community leadership. You'll learn how officers protect citizens' rights, build trust, and understand the value of all people within the police force.
