The new resolution that calls Hoosiers to action to protect the health and wellbeing of Indiana's children has been widely distributed and gaining much attention. There has been recognition from the Governor, cooperation with the Department of Education, January OP-ED piece and over 150 youth and education Legacy projects.

Indiana Bicentennial Commission

Commission Meeting Minutes – April 8, 2016

Children will be a part of the Bicentennial Stamp First Day of Issue and a children's choir will also be performing.

Lee Hamilton would like to ask the Commission to think of ways and take action to get children involved and get more involvement with projects from across the state.

Becky Skillman pointed out the movement this resolution has had in a short amount of time. She thanked Perry and staff for their hard work in getting it going.

Perry Hammock showed coloring pages that have been taken to the State Museum, Boy & Girl Scouts and IDOE. Valeri will email this coloring page to Commissioners.

Sarah Evans Barker recognized the terrific progress that has been made. She pointed out two major topics that should somehow be addressed. Violence and infant mortality. We should use the State Fair to have more initiatives like a day dedicated to children or health.

Lee Hamilton stated how Sarah Evans Barker has been a prime mover in this children's initiative and will see that we follow up with those two issues.

Rene Stanley met with the Peace Learning Center and they will be submitting an anti-bullying Legacy project shortly.

P.E. MacAllister questioned whether there could be an endowment.

Jim Madison brought up the Children's Nature Center in Centerville as a proud partnership for Indiana's children. We will look at having a Commission meeting there. Sarah Evans Barker followed up on the Lilly Day of Service and the relevancy to the Bicentennial it has. Perry answered that they are co-branding and working with a major children's project spread across the state.

First Lady's Update

- First Lady Karen Pence

First Lady Pence shared her travels around the state as official Ambassador for the Bicentennial. She visited Thomas Jefferson Elementary School in Porter County and James B. Eads Elementary School in Lake County. She also visited the Cedar Lake Bicentennial Shingle Legacy Project.

First Lady Pence will be working with "Blue" from the Colts to read Blue's children's book at schools.

Bartholomew County Update

- Lynn Lucas, Bartholomew County Coordinator

Bartholomew County has been busy with Legacy projects, having been approved for 20 endorsed projects. They had 103 torch bearer nominations and are finalizing details for their participation in the torch relay.

They will be adding town banners bearing the Bicentennial logo on them this summer.

CSWC Crane Presentation

Indiana Bicentennial Commission

Commission Meeting Minutes – April 8, 2016

- Captain Jeffrey Elder, Commanding Officer

It is the 75th anniversary of Crane NWSC. Captain Elder presented the Commission and staff members with his personal coin to thank them for their work on the Bicentennial. The Commission and staff were very thankful for the coin and for his work partnering with the Bicentennial.

Indiana State Fair and the Bicentennial

- Sam Alderfer, Social Media Coordinator

The 2016 State Fair theme is Celebrating Indiana's Bicentennial.

The Commission will have a booth in the newly named Bicentennial Pavilion where we will display the Bicentennial Barn Quilt, the book, the Bicentennial medal, flag and stamp.

We are currently designing a wooden nickel to give out to booth visitors.

In planning the fair's themed days, it was suggested to have an "Indiana Reading Day" with the Colts mascot, Blue.

The Bicentennial Bison will be in either Celebration Park or Pioneer Village and will be judged by the general public and professional judges.

The Home & Family Arts Building is now the Indiana Arts Building and will feature significant Bicentennial programming including the First Lady's watercolor painting exhibit.

There is a Bicentennial Commission meeting scheduled for August 19th. There will be a luncheon on the porch of the Administration Building following the Commission meeting.
