

The Kansas City Monarchs in our home town!

An intriguing look back at local NEGRO LEAGUE BASEBALL HISTORY

Friday, August 22, 2014 @ 10:00 am
Martin University's Gathertorium
2171 Avondale Place, Indianapolis, Ind.

*Featuring a viewing of the documentary
"Black Baseball in Indiana"*

Free to attend. To RSVP e-mail:
bmeadows@icrc.in.gov.

Presented by Negro League Museum Co-Founder and Author Phil Dixon.

Most people have heard of Jackie Robinson, some have heard of Satchel Paige, many have heard of the Kansas City Monarchs but few know how connected they were to your local community. In honor of the 90th Anniversary of the Monarchs' first World's Championship in 1924, I am returning to 90 cities where they played games to present this team's unique history, and I do so with a local twist—I talk about games the Monarchs played in your city against local competition—as well as discuss the history of African-American ball players from your community who participated in the Negro Leagues. There are several such players from Indianapolis. My program is appropriately titled, "The Kansas City Monarchs in our home town."

INDIANAPOLIS RECORDER
NEWSPAPER

