

CENTER FOR EVIDENCE-BASED PRACTICE
A PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN IDOC AND CAFS

Linking Research Evidence to Community Corrections Practice and Policy

Monday, September 21, 2009

Indiana University Union • Bloomington, IN • FREE

Register today for the free all-day conference on improving practices, outcomes and accountability in community corrections. Presentations will feature both national and state-wide perspectives on evidence-based practices. Break-out sessions may include:

- Lessons Learned in Evidence-based Practice
- Technical Assistance: How Can We Help You?
- Quality Assurance: What Does It Take to Implement IBP Effectively?
- Kids Only: Evidence-based Programming for Juveniles
- Putting it in Perspective: The NIJ Agenda
- Indiana Risk Assessment Tool
- Let's Work It!: Vocational Training for Community Corrections
- On the Cutting-edge: Highlighting EBP Efforts in Indiana

The Center for Evidence-Based Practice (CEBP) is a joint project of the Indiana Department of Correction (IDOC) and the Center for Adolescent and Family Studies (CAFS) at Indiana University. CEBP is a clearinghouse that offers user-friendly information about national standards and state of the art programs in community corrections. It is designed to assist Community Corrections officials with selecting, implementing, and evaluation research-based interventions in the state of Indiana.

cebp.indiana.edu

Thomas E. Feucht, PhD, is Executive Senior Science Advisor at the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), U.S. Department of Justice.

He has been a member of the federal government's Senior Executive Service since 2005 and has been with the NIJ since 1994. Dr. Feucht serves on the Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences (SBE) Subcommittee of the National Science and Technology Council Committee on Science, of the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

Tom Sexton, Ph.D., ABPP Director Center for Adolescent and Family Studies Indiana University-Bloomington.

He is a licensed Psychologist, a Diplomat in Family Psychology, a Fellow of the American Psychological Association, and President of the Society for Family Psychology (APA Division 43).