State Why Acceptance is in the Public Interest:

Programing at NCAN "aims to address issues that are crucial to attendees' success in serving their students and communities." The NCAN conference offers the ability to allow higher education professionals who specifically work directly with financial aid and student services to grow, learn, and network. Attendees will network with like-minded individuals from across the country in the postsecondary education access and attainment field. Raven's main job duty requires her to assist students and parents with questions regarding their state financial aid. Filing the FAFSA is step of the entire process. Attending the conference will allow Raven to expand her knowledge on student success as well as student support. By extension, Hoosier students and families will benefit.
