Modern Police Combatives

Today's law enforcement officers face an ever increasing level of violence in their day to day work. Approximately 10% of officers will ever be involved in a shooting during their career, but you will have to apply force almost daily with your hands. The ability to gain control without depending upon tools, which can fail at any time, will make you a safer officer. Learn to fight in and around vehicles, close with and gain control of resistant suspects, and how to articulate more effectively your use of force for court or administrative review.

Not every fight is a gun fight.

Benefits of an all female class:

- Feel comfortable training all techniques with female training partners
- Freedom to ask questions without fearing embarrassment in front of peers
- Techniques will be drilled against partners of various sizes and experience levels.
- Final practical scenarios will give students a chance to apply material against role players to show effectiveness despite size disparity (Creating confidence in the effectiveness of the materials learned)
