FARMALLS

IN ROSCOE CALVERT FAMILY

By C. M. RECTOR

MR. ROSCOE CALVERT, R. R. 3, Worthington, Ind., a tractor farmer for the past 15 years, has farmed several thousand acres with McCormick-Deering equipment. This year he is farming 250 acres, which is not as much as he has previously farmed in White River bottoms, and is cooperating with Purdue University through the Greene County Agent, Arthur Haseman, in planting 32 acres of various kinds of corn, including hybrid corn, in a comparison test for them.

This field was plowed, disked, harrowed, and planted with McCormick-Deering tools. The new F-110 planter, which is a two-row direct-connected type for the F-12 Farmall, did a splendid job check-planting, especially with the hybrid seed corn, which has the appearance of Indian corn butt kernels. Another good illustration of how the McCormick-Deering corn planter will handle any

The Calverts find many odd jobs where the Farmall is convenient and economical.
