

DATE: January 15, 2013

TO: All Local Health Departments
Attn: Chief Food Inspection Officer

FROM: <sup>ASG</sup> A. Scott Gilliam, MBA, CP-FS
Director, Food Protection Program

SUBJECT: Milo's Kitchen Recall

SUGGESTED

ACTION: Unclassified Recall; Chicken Jerky and Chicken Grillers home-style dog treats from retailer shelves nationally due to trace amounts of residual antibiotics had been found in several lots of Milo's Kitchen® Chicken Jerky; Recommend notification of affected stores via phone, fax or e-mail.

From the information provided by FDA, the recalled products may have been distributed in the State of Indiana. The use of antibiotics to keep chickens healthy and disease-free while raising them is standard practice in poultry production for both human and pet food. However, the antibiotics found in the products were unapproved and should not be present in the final food product. Detail store information is not available at this time. In addition, if any recalled products are found, please notify this office at 317-351-7190.

*****

Recall -- Firm Press Release

FDA posts press releases and other notices of recalls and market withdrawals from the firms involved as a service to consumers, the media, and other interested parties. FDA does not endorse either the product or the company.

Milo's Kitchen® Voluntarily Recalls Chicken Jerky and Chicken Grillers Home-style Dog Treats

Contact:
Consumer:
1-877-228-6493

Media:
Chrissy Trampedach
415-247-3420
media.relations@delmonte.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE - January 9, 2013 - Milo's Kitchen® today announced that it is voluntarily recalling its Chicken Jerky and Chicken Grillers home-style dog treats from retailer shelves nationally. No other Milo's Kitchen® products are affected.

On Monday, New York State's Department of Agriculture informed the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the Company that trace amounts of residual antibiotics had been found in several lots of Milo's Kitchen® Chicken Jerky. After consultation with the New York Department of Agriculture and FDA, the company decided to voluntarily recall Milo's Kitchen® Chicken Jerky and Chicken Grillers, which are both sourced from the same chicken suppliers.

The use of antibiotics to keep chickens healthy and disease-free while raising them is standard practice in poultry production for both human and pet food. However, the antibiotics found in the products were unapproved and should not be present in the final food product.

Milo's Kitchen® has a comprehensive safety testing program in place for its products from procurement through manufacturing and distribution. Part of that program involves extensive testing for a wide range of substances commonly used to ensure the health of chickens. However, Milo's Kitchen® did not test for all of the specific antibiotics found by the New York Department of Agriculture.

"Pet safety and consumer confidence in our products are our top priorities," said Rob Leibowitz, general manager, Pet Products. "While there is no known health risk, the presence of even trace amounts of these antibiotics does not meet our high quality standards. Therefore, today we decided to recall both products and asked retailers to remove the products from their shelves.

"Consumers who discard the treats will receive a full refund," said Leibowitz. "We are committed to Milo's Kitchen® and stand by our guarantee of complete consumer satisfaction."

Consumers with questions about Milo's Kitchen products can get further information at 1-877-228-6493.

###