Caring for a critically ill child can sometimes cause anxiety and fear even in the most seasoned of medical professionals. Children have many of the same diseases and conditions as adults, yet the assessment and management principles will differ in some areas and be quite similar in others. This presentation will review the essential components of a rapid pediatric assessment, along with some “just like adults” treatment tips. Through the use of real-life case studies, videos, and a group game show, critical care and emergency personnel will come away better able to provide care for sick kids.

About the Speaker: Scott DeBoer RN,MSN,CEN,CPEN,CCRN,CFRN,EMT-P

Scott DeBoer is a seminar leader and nurse consultant with over 20 years of nursing experience. DeBoer received his associate degree in 1988, his baccalaureate in 1991 and his master's degree in critical care nursing from Purdue University in 1996. He presently works as a flight nurse for the University of Chicago Hospitals and is the primary seminar leader for Peds-R-U's Medical Education, a seminar company dedicated to teaching better ways to care for kids. DeBoer has authored a Certified Pediatric Emergency Nurse Review book and a neonatal emergencies handbook, for emergency nurses, paramedics and respiratory therapists.

His past experience includes over 20 years of neonatal/pediatric/adult flight nursing, as well as staff nurse positions in intensive care, emergency/trauma nursing. He has also taught as a clinical nursing instructor at Purdue University and is a member of AACN, ENA, NAEMSE and ASTNA. Lastly, Scott is a legal nurse consultant with various national law firms, and as such, is an expert witness for nursing and EMS malpractice issues.

DeBoer has written extensively on pediatric and critical care topics in multiple journals such as Neonatal Network, Critical Care Nurse, Journal of Emergency Nursing, AirMed, Emergency Medical Services, Air-Medical Journal and Nursing Spectrum. In recognition of his excellence and significant contributions in medical transport journalism, DeBoer was honored by ASTNA to be the recipient of the 2000 Jordan Award.

DeBoer is married and has two young children, but still manages to hold certifications in emergency, critical care, trauma and flight nursing. He also regularly lectures to national and international audiences on neonatal, pediatric and “big-people” emergency topics.

A presentation brought to you by Indiana University Health Arnett Trauma Services in partnership with Indiana University Health LifeLine.
