Re: Citizens Action Coalition Inc.'s Written Comments Pursuant to General Administrative Order 2014-1

Dear General Counsel Roads and the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission:

Citizens Action Coalition of Indiana, Inc. ("CAC") appreciates this opportunity to submit comments on energy efficiency ("EE") and demand-side management ("DSM") policy in Indiana, in response to General Administrative Order ("GAO") 2014-1. Although there are numerous issues on which CAC could comment related to the future of cost-effective DSM and EE in Indiana, CAC will limit its comments to what we view as the most important considerations with respect to "formulating the most effective energy efficiency policy for Indiana," per Governor Pence's request. See GAO 2014-1, Appendix A.

Introduction

This comment period comes at a difficult time for those who seek to ensure that energy efficiency – the cheapest, cleanest and most readily available energy resource – is provided to all customers in Indiana. Despite the clear, demonstrated benefits of energy efficiency, Indiana's least cost, least risk resource has come under attack, and the people of Indiana have suffered a significant setback in the struggle to secure affordable ways to power our homes and businesses and to take control of our energy consumption.

The Commission's call for written comments regarding EE and DSM recommendations is the result of the recent and significant step backwards Indiana has taken concerning the future of energy efficiency in the State. On March 28, 2014, the Indiana General Assembly enacted Senate Enrolled Act ("SEA") 340, which became law without the Governor's signature and dramatically changed Indiana's energy landscape. SEA 340 repealed the existing energy efficiency savings goal established by the Commission, terminated statewide third-party administered efficiency programs (as of December 31, 2014), and allowed customers that receive power at a single site greater than 1 MW (what is called "industrial customers") to opt out of utility-run efficiency programs.

On the day before SEA 340 was enacted, Governor Pence requested that the Commission provide him with a set of recommendations on EE and DSM policies and programs that "can inform the development of a new legislative framework for potential legislation to be considered in the 2015 session of the Indiana General Assembly." GAO 2014-1, Appendix A. To help it develop recommendations for the Governor's consideration, the Commission established the public comment process currently underway.

The Governor's March 27 letter to the Commission and, in turn, the Commission's request for public comments in GAO 2014-1 seek recommendations to "assist [the] administration in formulating the most effective energy efficiency policy for Indiana." GAO 2014-1, Appendix A. CAC supports a legislative framework in which Indiana and its utilities pursue all cost-effective DSM and EE. However, we also believe it is critical for the Commission to use its technical and regulatory expertise to help develop and implement supportive policies within such framework. The Commission is charged by the legislature with regulating electric and natural gas utilities, among others, and seeks to assure that these utilities "use adequate planning and resources for the provision of safe and reliable utility services at reasonable cost."<sup>1</sup> To accomplish its mission, the Commission utilizes the individual commissioners' and their staff's expertise in navigating the myriad of utility laws, rules and precedent, and complex ratemaking principles and utility processes; and thoroughly explores issues with public input from affected stakeholders through an administrative process that is lacking in Indiana's legislative process. Thus, any framework established should provide the Commission with an opportunity to develop policies concerning EE and DSM resources.

Need for a Strong Energy Efficiency Resource Standard

Strong state policies are an essential condition to effective EE and DSM programs. One such policy is an energy efficiency resource standard ("EERS"). As the American Council for an Energy-Efficiency Economy explains:

[A]n Energy Efficiency Resource Standard is a critical policy that lays the foundation for sustained investment in energy efficiency. The long-term goals associated with an EERS send a clear signal to market actors about the importance of energy efficiency in utility program planning, creating a level of certainty that encourages large-scale investment in cost-effective energy efficiency.<sup>2</sup>

It is well understood that investing in EE and DSM is essential to the sound and economical management of the utility's public service obligations and that EE and DSM are by far the lowest cost resources available to the utilities in meeting those obligations. Indeed, the Commission has previously noted that "an investor owned utility . . . has fiduciary duties to its shareholders and regulatory obligations to its customers to cost effectively manage its business. [It] has a regulatory obligation to provide least cost service and pursue cost-effective DSM as part of its ongoing long term planning obligation."<sup>3</sup> An EERS can provide greater certainty with respect to utilities meeting their planning obligations.

Roughly half of all states have adopted policies that set mandatory long-term savings targets for utilities and other efficiency program administrators. Most of the states with savings targets are on track to meet or exceed their goals, and many of them represent the national leaders on efficiency.<sup>4</sup> In fact, every state that reported statewide electricity savings of more than 1% in 2011 had an EERS in place.<sup>5</sup> By contrast, this means that no state is achieving savings above 1% under a purely utility driven, voluntary approach, which breeds a lack of marketplace certainty and could create ratepayer inequity.

While this national data is compelling, we need not look beyond our own state borders to understand the impact of savings goals. As the below graph illustrates, prior to the savings goals established in the Commission’s 2009 Phase II Order, Indiana utilities were achieving virtually no energy efficiency savings. However, after the Commission established the savings goal, efficiency savings grew exponentially in just a few years to nearly 840 GWh in 2013.

Note: Sources for spending and savings calculations include docketed reports and plans under Cause No. 42693 S1, ACEEE Scorecards, and Form EIA-861. Some calculations include planned savings numbers for 2013; actual data had not been released when this table was compiled.

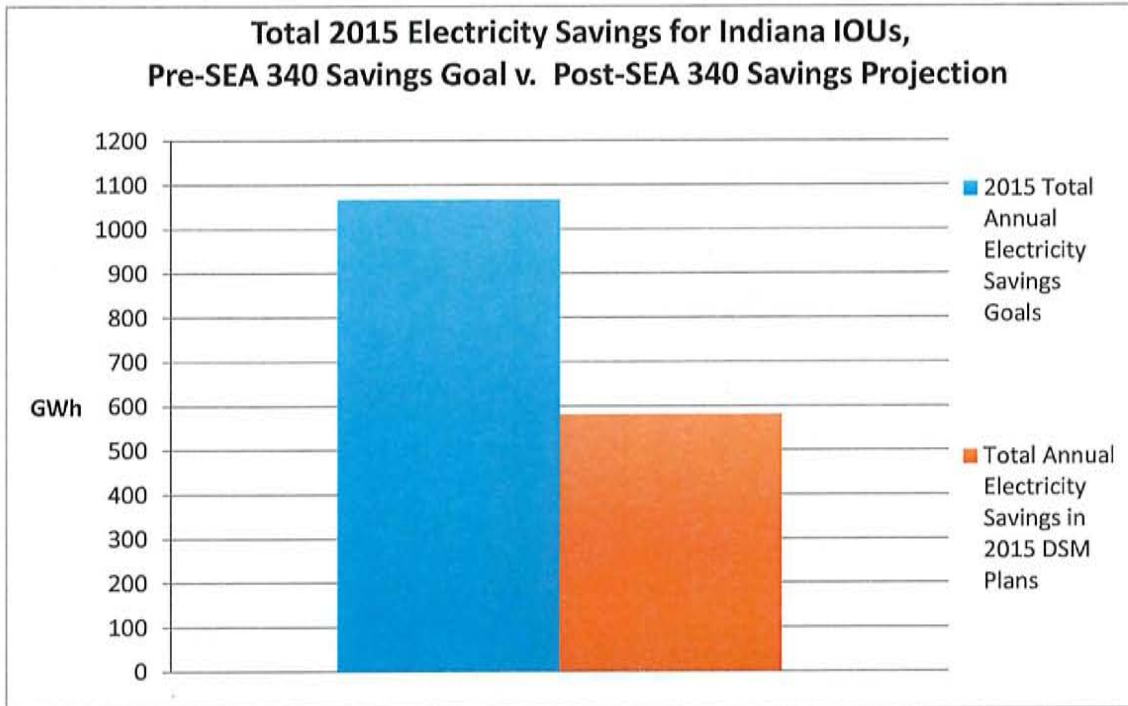

Based on Program Year 1 evaluation data, an efficiency expert from ACEEE observed that “[j]ust the statewide “core” energy efficiency programs alone are saving 25 times as much electricity as the utilities were under the old “voluntary” approach in 2008.”<sup>6</sup> In Program Year 2, the savings were nearly 50 times as large as in 2008, under the “no policy” conditions that prevailed at that time. Without question, the strong policy framework in the 2009 IURC order worked well in producing significant energy efficiency accomplishments in Indiana.

As Ms. Susan Stratton, Executive Director of the Energy Center of Wisconsin who served as testimonial staff in Cause No. 42693, noted in the Phase I report filed April 6, 2007, “[t]he primary obstacle to the development of a cohesive statewide DSM effort is the absence of clearly enunciated policy objectives for such an effort.”<sup>7</sup> Unfortunately, SEA 340 removed the policy directive necessary for the Commission to further effectuate the goals established in the Phase II order of December 2009 by building upon the progress already achieved as a result of that order.

The impact of SEA 340’s repeal of the Commission’s 2009 savings goal can already be seen. As the below graph shows, the utilities’ 2015 DSM plans project energy savings that are nearly 50% lower than the 2015 savings level provided in the Phase II order when the savings goal was in place.

CAC believes that a savings goal should be reinstated. However, the legislature may not be the optimal forum for establishing specific savings or budget levels, but rather the forum to declare a goal that all Indiana electricity service suppliers should pursue “all cost effective efficiency.” Further determinations regarding specific goals or budget levels should be data driven, beginning with regular market potential studies and ending with program cost effectiveness evaluations, which should be done at a minimum once every three years. These type of technical determinations should be made by the IURC, the agency with the technical expertise to properly analyze the information and set goals or budget levels. The Commission has a long history and a strong record on EE and DSM, most notably the Phase II order of December 2009, which outlined strong policy objectives for EE and DSM. The Commission should point the Governor to those conclusions and recommend adoption of the objectives already outlined, which were the culmination of an exhaustive investigation that included many interested stakeholders representing varied interests and multiple sectors. The Commission should also continue to set goals, as it did in its Phase II Order and as SEA 340 anticipates. IC § 8-1-8.5-9(h).

Should the Commission decide to recommend specific goals for the Governor to consider, CAC suggests that the goals be statewide and not utility-specific in order to avoid artificial boundaries of a utility service territory and the complications that come with that utility-specific approach. CAC also suggests that the goals be consistent with those established in the Phase II order, or ensure that any goals mandate that, at a minimum, utilities achieve energy savings of no less than 1% of total retail sales on an annual basis.

Most importantly, recommendations to the Governor should include that any policy initiative from the legislature be equitable. This can be achieved by repealing SEA 340 and allowing the Commission the flexibility to start again in developing EE and DSM program offerings that are made available to all classes of ratepayers and all sectors of the marketplace. Furthermore, all ratepayers, big and small, should participate in funding EE and DSM programs as all ratepayers stand to benefit from the cost and energy savings achieved.

Need for a Statewide Program

A Statewide EE and DSM program promotes equity and consistency. A Statewide program has the benefit of economies of scale to most cost-effectively deliver EE and DSM savings and can facilitate market transformation. Additionally, as stated above, statewide programs would not be constrained by the artificial boundaries of a utility service territory, but rather would be able to capture all of the available, cost effective EE and DSM regardless of the service territory in which the resource may reside.

Another benefit of statewide programs is the ability to more effectively and efficiently offer dual fuel programs. For example, measures such as shell weatherization, windows, etc., may not be cost effective on a stand-alone gas or electric basis, but may be cost effective when the costs and impacts are combined for multiple fuels and the programs are coordinated, funded, and implemented together.

Need for Independent, Non-Profit, Third Party Administration

CAC maintains our long standing position that an independent statewide administrative model will be more effective at delivering efficient and cost-effective EE and DSM to all classes of consumers than will utilities. An independent third-party administrator (“TPA”), who would report directly to the Commission, would provide consistency across utility service territories, is better positioned to effectively integrate dual fuel DSM programs and would avoid duplicative administrative and marketing efforts. Additionally the conflict that utilities face when having to implement programs that reduce customer use would be eliminated.

Funding of EE and DSM programs and issues related to cost recovery

Similarly, CAC strongly believes that the preferred method for the funding of EE and DSM programs be through the establishment of a public purpose fund established by the legislature, but whose level of funding would be established by and whose administration would be governed by the Commission. This method would eliminate the complications and disagreements that arise from compensating investor-owned utilities for service offerings designed to reduce their sales. Furthermore, the excessive “lost revenues” compensation that utilities have been earning could be eliminated under this method. This would help to keep all classes of customers satisfied and protected from utility overearning and from the utilities unnecessarily inflating the cost of EE and DSM.

CAC believes issues related to the cost recovery of EE and DSM programs should be kept with the IURC agency experts who best understand the various mechanisms and their roles. The Commission already possesses the authority to decide the best method relative to compensating the utilities for their investments, therefore the General Assembly should not tie the hands of the regulators when making these complex decisions.

Cost Effectiveness and Evaluation of EE and DSM programs

All EE and DSM programs, regardless of the manner in which they are delivered, must be cost-effective at the portfolio level. This method of determining cost-effectiveness was already established in the 2012 Indiana Evaluation Framework by the Indiana DSM Coordination Committee and the Indiana Statewide Core Program Evaluation Team<sup>8</sup>:

That is, the cost to acquire energy efficiency resources needs to be equal to or less than the cost to acquire resources from new power supplies. However, individual programs are not required to be cost effective as long as the[y] fit within a portfolio that is cost effective. This policy allows the development and testing of pilot programs or the launching of new programs or programs that have higher start-up or operational costs, but which are expected to be cost effective once lower cost operations are achieved. It also allows the offering of programs that may not be cost effective but help provide a balanced set of energy efficiency services across all customer segments.

Pp. 17-18. As such, DSM programs should be evaluated on a portfolio level by an independent third party. Additionally, the Indiana Technical Resource Manual should be the required benchmark utilized in such evaluations, which was also required by the 2012 Indiana Evaluation Framework. See p. 4.

Economic Development for Indiana

As an economic development tool for Indiana, Energizing Indiana, which was created to help utilities achieve the savings goal cost effectively from the Phase II order, was very successful. Energizing Indiana paid approximately $7.5 million in rebates for commercial and industrial consumers in 2012 and $31 million in 2013. An evaluation of the overall effectiveness of current EE and DSM programs in Indiana should include an examination into the economic development that robust DSM programs provide. For example, a survey of energy efficiency contractors in Michigan found that:

1. 650 commercial contractors were listed as trade allies in the four biggest utility programs in 2013;
2. 9537 rebate commercial energy efficiency project applications were processed in 2013;
3. $58 million in incentives were paid by the big four utility C&I programs; and
4. There was a $1 to $21 ratio of incentive to total project spend, which had a “staggering degree of economic impact generated by the C&I energy efficiency industry flowing through Michigan’s economy.”<sup>9</sup>

This information would be helpful for the development of any new utility programs or policy for EE in Indiana. Any new policy for Indiana should focus around the creation of Hoosier jobs, driving down costs for consumers, generating economic development for Hoosier families and businesses, and continuing to engage our robust trade ally network.

Issue of Industrial Opt-Out

The Governor seeks recommendations concerning large customer opt outs. CAC recommends that Indiana policy clearly articulate that energy efficiency is a legitimate utility system resource, just like a power plant, and that all customers should share in paying for the energy efficiency resource—just as they would for a power plant. If special arrangements need to be granted to allow for an opt out, that should only be in exceptional circumstances, for the very largest industrial customers—those with a single site demand in excess of 5 MW, requiring the repeal or alteration of SEA 340. Otherwise, EE and DSM policy should require the participation of all customers at and under 5 MW. Any large customers in that range (single site demand between 1 MW and 5 MW) that would like the flexibility to administer their own EE and DSM should be allowed the opportunity to utilize highly-structured self-direct programs designed in a manner consistent with CAC testimony submitted in Cause No. 44310<sup>10</sup> and the “Follow the Leaders: Improving Large Customer Self-Direct Programs” by ACEEE from October, 2011.

Experience across the nation repeatedly shows that energy efficiency measures in the industrial sector are the least expensive source of energy efficiency. The costs to a utility to acquire savings in the industrial sector are typically 1 to 2 cents/kWh or less, compared to 2 to 4 cents/kWh across all sectors. If industrial energy efficiency is not included in a utility’s portfolio, the overall cost of the energy efficiency resource will be higher than necessary. Moreover, because industrial customers account for nearly one-third of total electricity use in Indiana, excluding them from the policy would mean that an enormous amount of very cost-effective energy efficiency resources would not be realized and much more expensive supply resources would have to be purchased for the utility system.

Industrial customers will pursue energy efficiency improvements, but only up to a very limited point—well below the potential for cost-effective energy efficiency from the utility resource perspective. A common ‘rule of thumb’ for large firms is that they will only make investments with a 2-year payback or less. (Actually, in the current economy it’s more like one year or less.) At typical industrial rates, a 2-year payback on an energy efficiency investment works out to about 1.3 cents per kWh. That means any energy efficiency project that costs more than 1.3 cents will not get done. That means the utility system will have to procure additional power at a much higher cost (recall, power from new generating plants will cost 8 – 12 cent/kWh) to serve load that could have been avoided through energy efficiency at perhaps 2, 3 or 4 cents/kWh. All customers, including industrials, will have to pay to procure those higher cost resources.

A utility energy efficiency program can solve this “payback gap” problem. Example: say an industrial customer had a potential energy efficiency project, but it had a 4 year payback. That project would not get done. However, a utility program could pay a rebate to ‘buy down’ the cost from a 4 year to a 2 year payback, so the industrial customer could proceed. Per the math above, the “cost” to the utility to obtain those savings would be only 1.3 cents per kWh, which is far below the cost of obtaining new supply. This is a good deal for the industrial customer (who in effect gains revenue by “selling” energy efficiency resources to the utility, and also ends up with a more efficient facility), and for all customers in the utility system (who avoid having to pay for more expensive supply). CAC urges the Commission to include industrial energy efficiency in its policy recommendations to Governor Pence.

The Risk of Section 111(d)

On June 2, 2014, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (“EPA”) issued its proposed rule to reduce carbon dioxide (“CO<sub>2</sub>”) emissions from existing power plants under § 111(d) of the Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C. §7411(d). By 2030, the EPA expects to reduce carbon emissions from the power sector by 30% nationwide below 2005 levels. The EPA’s plan includes state-specific goals, expressed as average emission rates for CO<sub>2</sub>, with Indiana’s goal at 20% by 2030. In order to meet that target, the proposal allows states, including Indiana, to develop plans to reduce carbon. The EPA included energy efficiency as one of four “building blocks” to be utilized by states when developing their compliance plans. Although the rule is not final and states, including Indiana, have indicated that there will be challenges to the rule, noncompliance will place Hoosier consumers at a great risk. If a state fails to submit a complete plan by the deadline or the plan is not approvable, it is likely that the EPA would develop and enforce a Federal Implementation Plan to meet the necessary reductions. Indiana should take the lead in developing its own plan and placing EE and DSM as a cornerstone of its plan, particularly because of the Hoosier jobs it can generate and the economic development it can drive for the State.

Conclusion

Experience in Indiana has clearly demonstrated that establishing a strong policy framework for utility energy efficiency programs in 2009 resulted in Indiana moving from virtually no utility energy efficiency savings to strong energy efficiency savings in just a matter of three years. Unfortunately, SEA 340 has dismantled the energy efficiency framework established by the IURC in 2009, leaving a void in its place. It is vitally necessary for Indiana policymakers and regulators to re-establish a strong energy efficiency policy framework, in order to ensure the continued acquisition of the lowest-cost utility system resource: energy efficiency. As Governor Pence stated in his March 27, 2014 letter to the Chairman of the IURC:

“Energy efficiency measures reduce demand for electricity, which reduces the need to build new generation facilities and avoids the costs associated with those new facilities.... Demand-side management (DSM) ...is a critical part of ensuring that our public utilities provide electricity at the lowest cost possible.”

CAC applauds the Commission for opening up this process to the public, and again we sincerely appreciate the opportunity to submit our comments on the best policy path forward for cost-effective EE and DSM programs for the State of Indiana.

Citizens Action Coalition

Recipient: Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission

Letter: Greetings,

Regarding the IURC's EE/DSM recommendations, please recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes:

- Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693.
- A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to.
- An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Edwin Case	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-08	The legislature must create incentives for industrial and commercial users of electricity to become more efficient. A price mechanism would accomplish this end.
Kelly Geckler	Columbus, IN	2014-05-08	We need to do anything that can diminish the affects of global climate change.
Paul Eisenberg	Bloomington, IN	2014-05-08	Increasing energy efficiency while decreasing the use of all things which produce greenhouse gases is, in my view, the most important project which citizens of Indiana can undertake now, at a time when noxious climate change is becoming an ever more serious problem.
Tom Rose	Jeffersonville, IN	2014-05-08	Although our federal government makes attempts at energy regulations, they do not have a true, comprehensive energy policy by which they guide their routine decisions. Let Indiana serve as an example as to how this can be done with a smart, equitable, efficient, climate-sensitive policy where both business and individual homeowners have a "win-win."
Thomas Bertrand	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-08	Remove big money from campaign financing.
Kenneth Granger	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-08	I want my 4-year-old granddaughter to have clean air to breathe. WE DO NOT NEED COAL. We need renewable sources of energy. Tell IPL to get BEYOND COAL by 2020.
Millie Brady	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-08	Indiana has been burning coal and polluting air and water. It is imperative that we use clean energy like solar and wind.
Bill Bederiaux-Cayne	Columbus, IN	2014-05-09	Energy efficiency is like recycling, necessary to us being good care takers of our earth.
Robert Lewis	Richmond, IN	2014-05-12	RPL along with others are getting ridiculous.
Harold Young	Richmond, IN	2014-05-12	Good Stewardship!
Lyle Janney	West Lafayette, IN	2014-05-12	We can't just stick a short-term band-aid on the environment.

Rebecca Blubaugh-Brown	LEBANON, IN	2014-05-12	I live (?) on SS and while we did get a 1.5% COLA, my actual COLA rose a good 20%. Things a hard enough for Indiana's Seniors, don't make things even harder!
todd kostecki	rensselaer, IN	2014-05-12	i live here in Indiana so it will affect me and since i see windmills all over the place the costs should be decreasing not rising the 2 biggest culprits in this REMC and NIPSCO who is by far the worst one of all
Richard Stuckey	Chicago, IL	2014-05-12	We all gain when energy is used efficiently.
Ann Wagner	phoenix, AZ	2014-05-12	Energy efficiency is a great business model. But let customers decide what is affordable for them.
todd kostecki	rensselaer, IN	2014-05-12	Hi Ann Wagner i am happy you signed the petition but you live in AZ here in IN our Gov Mr.Pence does not care about being Gov he is looking to be the big cheese in the white house he don't care what we pay or what bussinesses come or go and he really does not care about anyone who needs help that is a fact he is like jindal he is spending taxpayer money to keep from taking free money to expand the medicade program which common sense tells anyone in his position is rediculous i don't care what party you vote for this is a common sense decision and these Gov s are Just plain mean about this if people pay more so what if they starve so what if they die so what ...that is thier austerity plan come to life
Lawrence Jacksina	Charlottesville, VA	2014-05-12	Unless we take immediate action, our current energy policy is suicidal. We are heading towards climate disaster.

Donna Hess	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-14	We need to control energy use as much as possible, and the cost is certainly getting higher and higher.
Karri Garcia	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-14	The program educates the general public...it's just NOW getting popular. Don't deprive the community of this valuable resource that serves us ALL!
Victoria Hay	Warwick, RI	2014-05-16	The people of Indiana should not have to struggle with high energy bills. This country is becoming energy savey so should Indiana.
Dawn O'Friel	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-21	Energy Efficiency programs reduce the need for Electric Companies to build power plants which is BY FAR more expensive for ratepayers than demand-side management. Moreover, reducing electricity usage is better for the environment and preserves the finite energy sources we have for future generations to use. In short, energy efficiency is a better deal for Indiana. The only ones who "lost" are those profiting from the Monopolies involved here. Frankly, I could not care less if they make a little less money on their GUARANTEED money-making investment. Low-risk investment should certainly not guarantee high returns on the investment. Thanks.
Serrin Anderson	Richmond, IN	2014-05-21	It is mandatory that we find alternatives to fossil fuels that are tearing up this beautiful planet. etc etc. Why would it NOT be important to me.

Renee Sweany	Indianapolis, IN	2014-05-23	Indiana needs an Energy Efficiency Standard! Our original goal of 20% by 2020 is aggressive, but achievable. And it is in line with our neighbors - Illinois is 2% by 2015 and Ohio is 2% by 2019. Reducing energy consumption is much more economical and environmental than building more energy facilities. Please rebound from this huge step backward and help make Indiana a better place to live, breath and do business.

Citizens Action Coalition

Recipient: Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission

Letter: Greetings,

Regarding the IURC's EE/DSM recommendations, please recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes:

- Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693.
- A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to.
- An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

To: The Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission

Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes:

- Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693.
- A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to.
- An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Subject: Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy!

Dear Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission,

I just signed Citizens Action Coalition's petition "Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission: Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy!" on Change.org.

Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes: - Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693. - A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to. - An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Sincerely,
Laura Sucec Indianapolis, Indiana

Dear Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission,

I just signed Citizens Action Coalition's petition "Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission: Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy!" on Change.org.

Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes: - Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693. - A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to. - An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Sincerely,
Yasiu Kruszynski Chicago, Illinois

Dear Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission,

I just signed Citizens Action Coalition's petition "Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission: Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy!" on Change.org.

Recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes: - Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693. - A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to. - An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Sincerely,
Susan Sammis Bloomington, Indiana

Dear Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission,

Regarding the IURC's EE/DSM recommendations, please recommend to Gov. Pence that Indiana enact strong statewide energy efficiency policy that establishes: - Statewide savings goal similar to those established in the December 2009 order in Cause No. 42693. - A public purpose fund which ALL ratepayers contribute to. - An independent, non-profit Statewide third party administrator to oversee those funds.

Sincerely,
