

Commission attached to its comments a list and maps of additional census blocks that may be unserved based on data from the Indiana Office of Technology (“IOT”), which were not included in the FCC’s list of census blocks to be included in the September 27, 2012 reverse auction. Due to the shortness of time to perform analysis,<sup>1</sup> the list of census blocks submitted by the Indiana Commission was not comprehensive.

II. Comments

Upon further analysis of the FCC’s list of census blocks to be included in the September 27, 2012, the Indiana Commission submits a more comprehensive list of 1,416 Indiana census blocks (Attachment A) that are not included in the FCC’s list and a statewide map of the same (Attachment B). This list includes the census blocks that were a part of our initial comments filed on March 16, 2012. Based on data from IOT, these census blocks contain primary, secondary, local and/or rural roads and/or city streets and lack wireless coverage at the centroid or center of those census blocks.

The Indiana Commission reiterates its belief that the FCC’s list of census blocks does not contain all the census blocks that are unserved in Indiana. Further, because additional unserved and/or underserved census blocks could become evident during and after the process of the September auction, the Indiana Commission suggests that the FCC should strongly consider a supplementary reverse auction, for support from Phase I of the Mobility Fund, for unserved and underserved census blocks that may not have been included in the initial auction.

Respectfully submitted this 26th day of March, 2012

Larry S. Landis, Commissioner
Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission
